I think this is unsound because this area will not be able to cope with the amount of new homes being built i.e. took me three days to get a doctors appointment. The traffic going to work in the mornings and coming home is congested now without new homes being built and there is no new roads being linked to the A12. Heybridge has been flooded most years and building on flood plains will only make this worst, the proposed relief road and drainage works has not been shown it can work. The schools in the area are up to capacity, new schools need to be built not just the existing ones made bigger. Transport links to and from the schools are not adequate at the moment so how would they cope with more pupils. The parks are full to capacity if not more in the summer, the parking in the parks and in the town centre cannot cope not let alone with more homes being built. (Common sense is needed.)
