What happened to the proposed development of the site at Sadds Wharf - Surely it is better to build on "brown sites" within the existing town, without building on green belt land. I agree the population, especially in this area is growing, but we need farm land to grow food to feed these extra people.

I strongly disagree with building on green belt land. We need land to feed future generations. Malden at the moment is a nice small market town. These huge developments with the potential to add thousands more people, will turn this town into a mini-city. People have moved here and holiday here for its attractiveness - masses more people will spoil all it has now.
Probably as this is in BLOCK CAPITALS NO NOTICE WILL BE TAKEN OF MY COMMENTS !!
